The Drug Habit. Men of talent and brilliance whose mental products have pleased and astonished the world and women around whose fascination and charm has revolved many a distinguished social circle have fallen alike victims to this insidious and degrading habit. The false idea that better and more original work can be done by means of such an unnatural stimulus has been the ruin of many noble characters. Whether it be cocaine, morphia, antipyrine, phe nacetin-the shameful list grows almost daily-the fact remains that the highest mental and moral principles of the drug habitue are slowly under mined and dragged down to the dust The responsibilities of the medica practitioner in prescribing these potent remedies are, therefore, very considerable, while those of the dispensing chemist are hardly less.—London Medi-

The chef bowed several times and rubbed his hands together.

"What are you waiting for?" asked the cannibal king.
"Would your serenely altitudinous excellency deign to suggest some method of preparing the two persons—some new dish, for instance, that would be

An Anecdote of Ben Wade. In the early winter of 1861 bluff Ben Made, the Ohio senator, is credited with saying, "When Chief Justice Ta-ney was ill I used to pray daily and earnestly that his life might be preserved until the inauguration of Pres ident Lincoln, who would appoint a Republican chief justice, but when saw how complete his recovery was and how his life was prolonged I be-gan to fear that I had overdone the business!"-L. E. Chittenden's "Person al Reminiscences."

Big Undertakings. "Talk about big jobs," said the cheerful idiot while trying to look serious.

"Well," said the victim wearily. "Wheeling West Virginia may be some and Lansing Michigan may be rather a big surgical undertaking, but Flushing Long Island isn't such a tiny little sanitary stunt."-Baitimore Amer-

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoxa and believed I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading cit-izen of Patton, Ala.
